Autodesk is planning to integrate Revit, Bentley Microstation and all other CAD formats into AutoCAD, starting with AutoCAD 2015, through the Revit Architecture 2013. After this unification, AutoCAD will no longer support the DWG standard. Instead, all formats will be internally stored as.dwgx. This means that all future projects with AutoCAD will be stored in the DWG format internally. This is not currently supported by any other CAD programs, so they will not be able to import those files.
