of epidermal growth factor receptor in acinar cell carcinoma of the pancreas. The expression of epidermal growth factor receptor (EGFR) was investigated immunohistochemically using the polyclonal antibody against the receptor in six acinar cell carcinomas of the pancreas, seven adenocarcinomas of the pancreas with acinar differentiation, and five normal pancreas. All six acinar cell carcinomas showed positive immunostaining for EGFR. The intensity of staining ranged from strong to strong and weak. The staining pattern of the cancer cells was in keeping with positive staining for TTF-1, cytokeratin, and epithelial membrane antigen. On the other hand, only weak or negative staining was observed in normal acinar cells of the pancreatic duct.

Adenocarcinomas with acinar differentiation also showed positive immunostaining for EGFR. In conclusion, these findings indicate that EGFR is overexpressed in acinar cell carcinomas. We speculate that EGFR expression may be a useful marker for the diagnosis of this tumor. Beard, now age 58, brought this action against the company in the district court. The parties waived a jury and submitted the case to the trial court, which in 1964 rendered a judgment in favor of Beard. Beard moved for a new trial, and on May 18, 1965, the court, with consent of the parties, entered an order in the case providing that a new trial be granted on June 24, 1965. On June 24, the parties settled the issue of damages. Beard accepted $29,000, and the company, $4,531.06. ---

To determine whether multidrug resistance-associated protein 1 (MRP1) is directly involved in hepatic chloroquine transport, we studied the effects of MRP1 expression and MRP1 inhibition in rat hepatocytes. Chloroquine transport was studied in primary cultures of hepatocytes from sham-operated rats (control), chloroquine pretreated rats (chloroquine), and in transfected rat hepatocytes that expressed MRP1 (MDR1-4). The effects of specific MRP1 inhibitors on chloroquine transport were also studied in transfected hepatocytes.

Both chloroquine pretreatment and transfection with MDR1-4 significantly increased hepatocyte chloroquine uptake. Transfection with MDR1-4 also significantly increased chloroquine transport in comparison to control hepatocytes (control 50+/-4, chloroquine 114+/-7 pmol.mg protein-1.5 min-1, MDR 3e33713323
